

INCONVENIENT TRUTH

GLOBAL WARMING OF METALS

By AGWire™
March 16, 2019

IF you were able to get next year's Wall Street Journal, you bet your sweet life savers that you would scour the markets and sell everything that was going to go Down, and buy everything that you could that was going Up. Of course, we'll never be privy to that kind of crystal ball forecast EXCEPT in one case. And we don't have to tell you the answer to the above, because the truth is already conveniently known, and public. With thanks and tremendous gratitude to Ted Butler for his life work in uncovering the details of ongoing price manipulation in the silver and gold markets, it is no longer a secret that precious metals are intentionally priced uncharacteristically low so that JP Morgan and its cronies can accumulate as much metal as they possibly can, all while creating negative sentiment in the marketplace. It is a brilliant and masterful scheme and scam that they continue to pull off. And the convenient truth is, IF YOU CAN'T BEAT 'EM, JOIN 'EM! The very same physical silver and gold that they are buying is also available to us, and at basically the same prices that they have held down. Why so few people are buying precious metals these days continues to baffle us, but the old saying "buy when everyone is selling, and sell when everyone is buying" still holds true. When the herd catches on, you'll likely be able to sell your silver to anyone and everyone at multiples of what you paid today.

So imagine you just picked up your copy of a March 2020 Wall Street Journal on your doorstep, poured a strong cup of DeathWish coffee, and opened up the paper to find the headline SILVER HITS $100/oz! Does that sound crazy? Or maybe not so much? Silver approached $50 in 1980, and again in 2001. At <$16 today (1/3rd of what it was 19 and 39 years ago), it sure seems like a no-brainer. AND it is still convenient to buy silver from your LCS or any online bullion dealer, as it continues to be readily available in quantity and at "today's" cheap prices. That is... for the moment. If you were present through the 1980 and 2011 precious metal spikes, you'll remember all too well that if you had metals to sell they were gone in an instant! NOTHING was available to buy ANYWHERE. There will be a GLOBAL WARMING of the precious metals market like nothing the world has seen. With so many more investors, collectors and every day folks now conveniently aware of the silver and gold manipulations and insanely cheap prices, coupled with the unimaginable government debt and continually declining currency value, this next rally will be far different from any past rallies we have ever witnessed. Whenever you have infinite dollars chasing a finite product, hysteria will ensue. Please don't take this as investment advice, just our own observation and good old-fashioned sage advice, which we rank second on our all-time list only to Mama telling us to eat our veggies when we were kids. She was so right about that, and THAT was also an Inconvenient Truth.

Blazingly,

AE

* A quick note to our community regarding inquiries to our website email address allengelhard@gmail.com. We truly value this portal, and have made some considerable strides in our website content thanks to your input over the years. While we try our best to answer every email that we receive, in recent months email volume to the website has escalated to well over 50 emails per day, some days exceeding 100. We try to answer emails in order of date received, and priority of topic, but over 80% of the emails we receive are to the effect of "What's this worth?" or "What series is this?" or "Should I buy this, and at what price?" answers that can easily be found by reading our Definitive Pages or viewing "Sold" listings on Ebay or WorthPoint. Adding to our curiosity, many of these inquirer's hit us back again with "Didn't you see my email yesterday, I need to know!". With all due respect, we cannot and will not respond to deadlines or demands. Although we will do what we can when we are able to, please know that we have full time day jobs and families that remain top priority. We hope you can appreciate and understand that.