We were so excited to see the positive spike in both Silver and Gold on Friday morning (04/12/2024) that we immediately put together this newsletter, and we were ready to launch it by about noon Friday – Silver was up almost $1.50/oz, Gold was up about $45/oz, and then suddenly out of nowhere, clouds started forming over the launch pad - the JP Morgan variety - and the spoof trader winds picked up, and before we knew it the huge upward spike in Silver ended the trading session at a -$0.44 loss, and the carnage in Gold was similar. This is precisely the tumultuous damage we have endured for seemingly forever as Silver investors. Friday, for a few delightful hours, we saw the free market working without manipulation, and then the COMEX and banks said “enough”, and exhausted a boatload of short positions they accrued on the price rise until things settled back down to their comfort level. Make no mistake, their acts are illegal as all get-out, and real market demand will only get stronger, and much much higher prices are coming very soon. Friday saw the largest price swings in Silver and Gold in the last 3 years, with unprecedented volume. Silver and Gold are now on the Worldwide Radar, and they are not going away, and they never have. Without ado, here is the newsletter we were about to launch before the storm arrived late Friday morning:

REPRIEVE might just be a better word, though, as what we have all endured as Silver investors over the past several decades has been nothing short of brutal punishment. And while we are all smiling right now at the new higher prices and increased market awareness of our favorite metal, we all know from experience that this will ultimately be a very rocky flight upwards, with heavy turbulence of gains and losses along the way. But make no mistake, an upward trend brings all smiles here. And really, who is better conditioned and positioned for this journey than us Silver investors? No one.

So many factors contribute to the recent rise in precious metals prices - record demand amidst scarce inventory, inflationary pressures on the US Dollar, the BRICS Development Bank, eminent war surrounding us, political turmoil at home, and off-the-charts international buying demand, to name a few. Could the bankers/traders responsible for decades of price manipulation finally be at a point of ineffectiveness, or worse for them, Fear of Collapse? We think so.

So, what do we as Silver investors do in these times? Do we sit back and watch the fireworks? Well, maybe, but only after topping off the stack. After all, Silver is STILL ON SALE. For the moment, let's call it STILLVER! And what a blessing for all of us to recognize this opportunity when Silver spot price is still below $30/ounce (as of this writing), some 60% lower than its all-time highs in 1979 and 2011. Many Silver experts and analysts tout that the true fair market value of Silver should be well into the triple digits once market trading is free from price manipulation. Doesn't this almost seem like inside information to know that something is severely undervalued and positioned to increase exponentially? We think so. And we're acting on it, and you should also.

Our collectible bullion community is also celebrating Silver's newfound regard, with rare ingot prices setting new price thresholds every week, along with the collector community growing by the day. These are the exciting times we've been waiting what seems like an eternity for... the very same feeling of excitement that initially lured us into this Silver world many many years ago.

We have no regrets. Sure, we've sold at the bottom and we've also been lured into the euphoria to buy at the top, but the only thing that matters now is that you have Physical Silver in your possession. And you can have MOAR while it remains available for cheap. If you read WHEN THE MUSIC STOPS, an article we published 4 years ago, you might find it appropriate. Because truly 'when the music stops', don't you think those with a firm seat in the STILLver market (ounces, kg's, grams) will be as happy as a pig in mud? We think so.

Stackingly,

AE
